The Truth About Wireless Phones and the Do-Not-Call Registry

You may be one of many consumers who have received e-mails saying you're about to be assaulted by unwanted telemarketing calls to your wireless phone. Rest assured that placing telemarketing calls to wireless phones is -- and always has been -- illegal in most cases.

Why the Confusion?

The confusion seems to stem from recent discussions in the wireless phone industry about establishing a wireless 411 phone directory, much like your traditional (wired) 411 phone directory. A number of e-mail campaigns seem to suggest that if your wireless telephone number is listed in a wireless 411 directory, it will be available to telemarketers, and you will start to receive sales calls. In addition, some of these e-mail campaigns suggest that there is a separate do-not-call "cell phone registry," which you must call to have your wireless phone number covered by the do-not-call rules. This information is wrong.

Here Are the Facts:

- At present, a wireless 411 directory is only in the idea stage.
- Even if a wireless 411 directory is established, most telemarketing calls to wireless phones would still be illegal. For example, it is unlawful for any person to make any call (other than a call made for emergency purposes or made with express prior consent) using any automatic telephone dialing system or any artificial or prerecorded voice to any telephone number assigned to a paging service, mobile telephone service, or any service for which the called party is charged for the call. This prohibition applies regardless of whether the number is listed on the National Do-Not-Call Registry.

Contrary to what some of the e-mail campaigns are now saying, the federal government does not maintain and is not establishing a separate Do-Not-Call Registry for wireless phone numbers. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) set up the National Do-Not-Call Registry to enable consumers to reduce the number of unwanted telemarketing calls to their phones. The Registry covers both traditional (wired) and wireless phones. The Registry is nationwide in scope and applies to all telemarketers, with the exception of certain non-profit organizations. Personal wireless phone users have always been able to add their numbers to the National Do-Not-Call Registry, either online at www.donotcall.gov or by calling toll-free to 1-888-382-1222 from the phone number they wish to register. Registrations become effective within 31 days of signing up and are active for five years. There is no cut-off date or deadline for registrations.

How to Complain

If you receive an unwanted telemarketing call and you have requested your telephone number be listed on the Registry, you can file a complaint by e-mail (fccinfo@fcc.gov); the Internet (www.fcc.gov/cgb/complaints.html); voice telephone call (1-888-CALL-FCC (1-888-225-5322)); or TTY telephone call (1-888-TELL-FCC (1-888-835-5322)). You can also mail your complaint to:

Federal Communications Commission
Consumer & Governmental Affairs Bureau
Consumer Inquiries and Complaints Division
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Your complaint letter should include:

- name, address, and telephone number where you can be reached during the business day;
- the telephone number(s) involved with the complaint;
- the type of resolution you are seeking; and,
- as much specific information about the complaint as possible; including the identity of the telemarketer or company contacting you.
